South Mill Mushrooms

Full Day

Locations in 4 states! South Mill's roots began 4 generations ago in 1932 when John Pia, an Italian immigrant, began operating a small mushroom farm in southeastern Chester County, Pennsylvania. In the 1950s, the Pia family began supplying mushroom growing substrate to many local family-owned mushroom farms and in a few short years, became the largest supplier of this substrate. In the 1970s, the domestic mushroom industry was largely dependent on sales to the processing markets, and mushroom growers nationwide were being severely injured by the influx of inexpensive, imported canned mushrooms. As a result, many of these small family-owned mushroom farms that had been in existence for several generations were being shuttered. Understanding the transition that was occurring in the substrate supply business, our family decided to expand its mushroom growing operations as a means of diversification. In 1982, we purchased one of Pennsylvania's largest mushroom
